

Paper Science

5 modules to choose from:

- From wood to pulp
- Containerboard manufacturing
- Paper properties
- Packaging manufacturing
- Board and box properties

Paper Science is a full training package, from wood pulp to end-user properties, through paper and packaging manufacturing.

The training is intended to increase the paper knowledge of your people in order to make them true 'containerboard packaging experts'. It will give them a better understanding of paper performance, behaviour and usage. The sessions are conducted from a strong practical and operational point of view: it is theory people can directly apply in their job.

The training is not only aimed at technical production people, but can also be very useful for people in sales or administration. When advising your customers, this kind of extra knowledge will certainly leave a strong impression!

The content, complexity and length of the training are always perfectly adjusted to the audience and their specific needs (beginning, basic or advanced sessions).

If the training is held at our mills a special mill tour is organised.
